MR. CAIN GOES TO JAIL

The Festive Milo Didn't Have a Thousand Dollars

WHEN THE MAYOR ASKED BAIL

Caroline Vandine's Residence Figured in the Highway Robbery Matter, and One Witness was Wary When They Wanted Him to Tell All About It.

Milo Cain, who has been in jail for several days charged with highway robbery, was given a hearing last night, and bound to the grand jury on two separate charges.

Police court presented the same old scene when Mayor Gilbert took his place, and the prisoner was brought down the hall. The crowd of eager spectators, ever anxious to hear testimony, particularly when it promises to bear the stain of sensationalism, was there as of old. The reporters were in their accustomed places, and a city official with a lawyer made up the remainder of the audience. Cain showed no evidence of being disturbed, but looked closely at Theodore Aurochs, the first witness who told the following story as though he had the scene before him:

"It was some time Sunday morning, I am not sure of the hour, as I had no time piece, when I was sitting on a rock at the Jethro bridge. I was waiting when Cain came up and caught me by the sleeve, and asked me for a chew. I told him I had none, and he asked me if I had any money. I told him I didn't, and he called me a liar. When James Mullen came up after I was assaulted I was standing on the end of the bridge leaning on the railing. I was hardly able to stand up. After Mullen asked for the money he struck me with his hand, and his partner hit me with a club. It was so dark I couldn't see what hand he used, but they peppered them into me like hot cakes. Then I rolled over and they walked away. After they had the scuffle with Mullen and Flowers they came back to me, but I couldn't move to resist them. Cain put his hand in my pocket and taking my knife and 65 cents said 'the you haven't got money.'"

George Flowers was the next witness and told a long story. "We were on the other side of the Jethro bridge," he said. "When I was stopped by Cain, who said he wanted my money, I told him he couldn't have it, and he said he would go through me. I said he would like —, and then I got hit in the neck. I think his partner did it. I don't know the exact time, but it was after midnight. I heard Roxy halloo for help, but I thought it was one of the attacking gang, and paid no attention to it. Cain worked for me several years. I had not worked all week, but had $13 when we went to Wellsville. Roxy and Mullen were with me. I didn't drink anything with them, but did by myself before I met them at the street car. It was after closing time when we got to Wellsville, and I asked Walter Supplee if it was the last car. We got off at Jethro, and ran into a crowd of six or eight men. I recognized Cain, and threw up my hand at him. Roxy wouldn't go up with us, but he waited on us."

The attorney—Go up where? Witness—Go up the road. Attorney—What road? Witness—Well, if you must know it, to Cal Vandine's house.

Attorney—Does she keep a hotel?

Witness—I don't know. We didn't get in. When we got there Roxy was missing, but I heard the call of the gang, and skipped out. They threw stones at me and I saw Cain and Harry Farr, a kilhand at Sebring's. When I came up to the gang, Cain grabbed my sleeve, and hit me three times. He said he wanted my money, and I told him I never did anything to him. Then he said he was going through me, and I got hit."

James Mullen, a man with an air of respectability about him, told almost the same story. "Cain and Farr had some words when we approached the bridge, and Cain said Flowers never bought drinks except in a saloon for himself. Cain wanted my money. I thought he was fooling, but he had an iron lock in his hand, and he struck at me, but I dodged and ran away. The reason we went to Wellsville was to get back some money that had been stolen from me. We didn't drink before we went down. I recognized Cain, Joe O'Brien, Tom Jolley and Fair on the bridge. O'Brien caught me, and said I was under arrest for resisting an officer. After we came down from Caroline's I stooped and picked up Aurochs. I was assaulted on the road down. Cain grabbed me and said he would go through me, but I ran and left them."

I guess they went back to Aurochs again."

Edward Farrish said he saw Cain on Sixth street on Saturday when he had $5, and later he saw him at the brewery when he had $3. The mayor could not see where this affected the case and sat on the attorney for calling him.

James Strain looked as though the world had not dealt kindly with him when he took the stand, and with an air suggestive of the Bowery said he slept on the green for a while on Saturday night, but later went to the Jethro club. When he awakened Cain and Farr were there sleeping, and that's all he knew.

Joseph O'Brian—I saw Cain early in the evening at 8 or 9 o'clock, but I'll give or take an hour. It might have been 10 o'clock. I wasn't on the trestle, except at 10 o'clock with Aaron Moore. Der wasn't another soul there. I don't know any more about 'de case 'das a dog goin' to eat a big elephant.'

This ended the testimony, and there was a short and lame argument by the attorney. When the mayor summed up the case he said:

"According to your argument this man is innocent, but by the evidence he is guilty, and I guess these people did not come here to swear to lies. I'll bind the prisoner to the grand jury in the sum of $500 on each charge."

Cain did not have the required thousand in his clothes, and was taken back to jail. Mullen explained after the trial that he was not drunk, and has not taken liquor for a long time.

AUROCHS IS SICK.

The Man Who Was Kicked Can Not Leave His Home.

Theodore Aurochs, the man who was kicked and robbed on Jethro bridge early Sunday morning, is sick and can not leave his house today. The spot where he was kicked in the side is so swollen and inflamed as to give him great pain, and his feet have assumed such proportions that he can not put on his shoes. Should his condition become more serious the charge against Milo Cain may be changed.

ASSAULTED PUSEY

And Is Answering to the Grand Jury For It Today.

Joseph Finley, of Chester, left this morning on his wheel for New Cumberland, but it was not by any means a pleasure trip.

About a week ago Finley had some words of a heated variety with Captain Elwood Pusey, of the ferryboat, Ollie Neville. The result was that Finley dealt Pusey a terrific blow with his open hand. Charges were at once preferred, and as the trouble was on the West Virginia shore, the courts of Hancock county took the matter in hand. Finley was not much surprised when yesterday he received a summons to appear before the grand jury at New Cumberland today and answer the charge of aggravated assault and battery.

"Yes it is awful to even contemplate such a thing" said Mr. Lasker as he concluded "and suppose it hadn't become known what must a man's conscience be to do such a trick?"

BADLY HURT.

Doctor Williams Little Son Thrown From a Pony.

Harold, the seven year old son of Doctor Williams, was riding a pony near the china works last night, and Byron Hale, on another pony, changed saddles with him. A long tack under the saddle penetrated Williams' pony and the animal kicked throwing the lad to the ground. He was carried to a house nearby unconscious, and did not fully arouse until 1 o'clock this morning. He is severely injured about the head and back, but it is not thought he is dangerously hurt.

Doctor Williams says Hale, who is about twice the age of the injured lad, enticed the latter away and he may prosecute him.

AT HIGH NOON.

The Wedding of Oliver E. Bishop and Miss Cora L. Miller Took Place.

Mr. Oliver E. Bishop, a prominent electrician of Wilmerding, Pa., and Miss Cora L. Miller, an accomplished young lady of this city, were wedded at high noon by Rev. J. C. Taggart at the residence of J. H. Davidson, 183 Broadway.

Fifty guests were present and showered congratulations upon the happy couple. A sumptuous wedding dinner followed and music and dancing occupied a portion of the afternoon. The presents were many and beautiful. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop left on the afternoon train for Detroit, and will visit Buffalo and Niagara

ICE FROM A CORPSE

Cooled the Tea Which E. M. Lasker Drank.

A DRUMMER WHO FEELS SICK

When He Thinks of the Supper He Ate In a North Carolina Hotel—Visits This City and Tells of His Experience Because a Landlord Economized.

A travelling man from Gotham visited the druggists and dealers in sponges in this city yesterday, and told a story which is most sickening in details.

The gentleman was the genial E. M. Lasker, representing Lasker Brothers, dealers in sponges and chamois. 280 Pearl street, New York City, and the tale he told made some of his hearers shudder. He verified it first with a clipping from the Cincinnati Enquirer of June 13 the substance of which was on the Monday night previous George W. Kittle, proprietor of the Phoenix Hotel at Winston, N. C., had taken from the corpse of Charles Johnson enough ice to cool the tea and other iced drinks served to his guests. The special stated further that the indignation of the people of Winston was great, and that Kittle had been compelled to make an assignment. All his boarders left the day following the episode.

"I wish I could say that story wasn't true," said Mr. Lasker, "but it is. I was in the Phoenix hotel in Winston that very night, and was indeed a sickening experience. The landlord Kittle wanted to economize, and when the ice supply ran short he simply went to the corpse of Johnson, removed some of the ice, and we had ice tea and other cool drinks in plenty. When the report got abroad as to what he had done it was too awful to believe, but was soon found to be correct. One of the kitchen girls had given the snap away, and it spread like wildfire. Kittle came near being mobbed by those whose stomachs were strong enough to withstand the sickening idea, and how the landlord escaped lynching I don't exactly know. The clipping, you will notice, states that there was a rubber blanket between the corpse and the ice, and that the body was not touched by the ice. That is not true. We cornered Kittle and he confessed all, but tried to excuse himself by saying that he took the ice from the top of the heap. He merely wanted to save 50 cents. Fifteen of the guests left that night and the hotel was almost deserted the next day. I didn't stay in Winston to hear any more. I had gotten enough and more than enough of that place. I am glad my memory fails me when I try to think what I drank for supper at the hotel that night because I feel better when I am in doubt about it. I must say, however much it goes against the grain, that to the best of my recollection I indulged in several cups of ice tea during my stay there."

"Yes it is awful to even contemplate such a thing" said Mr. Lasker as he concluded "and suppose it hadn't become known what must a man's conscience be to do such a trick?"

THE GIRLS WILL PLAY.

A New Base Ball Club Has Been Formed.

Some of the athletic young women employed in the decorating department at Knowles' pottery have formed a base ball club, and are looking for other clubs to conquer. They had a practice game on the hill last night, and it is said the way those balls were batted and flies caught gave promise of star players in the future. One young woman is said to be an excellent twirler and another is learning to take them off the bat. Dare any club in the city challenge them for a game?

THAT NEW RESORT.

C. A. Hutchison Denies a Printed Report.

Proprietor C. A. Hutchison, of the National House, denies the statement in an evening paper that Pittsburgh parties have leased the Pusey property on the other side of the river for a summer resort, and says he has leased it himself. Workmen today started to build the platform, and hope to get it finished without delay. The project is the old one mentioned in the NEWS REVIEW a month ago when it was in charge of Manley's band.

Fairbanks Will Be Present. Special to NEWS REVIEW.

LISBON, June 19.—The news of the arrest of the missing Fairbanks by Chief Gill caused joy among court house people, because the hearing of evidence in the petition of Golding & Co., for a new trial will be concluded next Monday. Fairbanks will have to answer for contempt of court.

DAN AFTER THE MAYOR

He Objects to a Big Sentence to the Works.

WILL SUE WHEN HE RETURNS When at the Station This Morning He Said He Would Enlist His Brother in His Cause and Would Have An Attorney Take Up the Case at Once.

Dan Corcoran and James Laird were very much attached to each other this morning at the passenger station, the bond which bound them being a stout pair of handcuffs. They were in charge of Officer Jennings, who was taking them to the Canton workhouse, and Dan was in an unusual frame of mind. He was mad all over, and longed for an opportunity to talk to anyone who would listen to what he had to say.

"I tell you the mayor can't send me to the workhouse for a year when I only plead guilty to disorderly conduct," said Dan, "and I am not going to stand it. Why that fine, $25 and 30 days will keep me there a year, and that's against the law. The mayor thinks I am no good, and can't take care of myself, but I'll show him that there are two sides to this question. I will have it put in the hands of an attorney and I'll notify my brother. He will have something to say about it. When I get out of the workhouse I am going to sue the mayor. It's an outrage."

The prisoners attracted no end of attention about the station, and Dan's complaint was heard by many. The authorities are not at all disturbed by his threat to enter suit, as they all object when the mayor sends them to the workhouse.

READY FOR WORK.

The Republican Executive Committee Special to NEWS REVIEW.

COLUMBUS, June 19.—The Republican executive committee, the men who will do the machine work of the coming campaign, was selected last night at a meeting of the central committee. Hon. C. L. Kountz, of this place, was made chairman, and Capt. W. S. Matthews, of Galia county, was chosen secretary. The member from the Eighteenth congressional district is J. H. Ruhman, of Mahoning county. The campaign will be opened about Sept. 15, but that will be decided later.

WILL MOVE NEXT WEEK. The Patriot Will Be Installed at the Fire Station.

The new stalls at the fire station are completed, and will be ready for Patrolman McMillan and his outfit early next week. The fire laddies are delighted at the prospect of an addition to the station, but cannot overlook the crowded condition now that another team will be with them. They would like to see the station large enough to hold them all, but are putting up with the promised condition with their best grace. The firemen were never known to kick.

WE HAVE THE LAND.

And It Is the Prettiest Spot on the Ohio.

The East Liverpool NEWS REVIEW wants a public park in that town. Some public spirited citizen should rise to the occasion and donate the land.—Salem News.

We have the land, the prettiest spot on the Ohio river, but we need that same public spirited citizen to push the plan along, and have council order the bodies removed, for that land is a deserted graveyard, the most useless institution in the world.

A GYPSY FAIR.

The Unique Exhibition Promised for Hookstown. The presence of several Gypsy camps in the vicinity of Hookstown has caused the young people of that place to appoint Friday as a gala day. The Gypsies will be gathered in the fair grounds, and will give an exhibition of their costumes, amusements, and manner of living. More wandering bands are in that vicinity than have been known in many years, and it is planned to have as many there as can be induced to come.

SERVED THE SUMMONS.

Patrolman McMillen Gave Teressa Bennet a Paper. The police have been in possession of a notice for some time which legally informed Teressa Bennet that her husband was anxious to receive a divorce, but they could find no one on whom to serve it. After long and anxious work by all the members of the force she was seen yesterday by Patrolman McMillen, and the papers were served. As one officer remarked, "We will get them all in time."

THE GAME THAT FAILED.

Colonel Brice is a smart man. From obscurity he has by hard work and the natural shrewdness of a money maker succeeded in amassing a great fortune, and through this fortune he has advanced his love for notoriety by having himself made a senator. Six years of official life has taught the amateur statesmen a thing or two, and he likes the taste of fashionable life in Washington. It is a sweet morsel to the wealthy railroad man, and he wants more of it. During the late rebellion the colonel made a very good soldier, and after the war was over he joined the Grand Army like all other good soldiers, but he found little time to devote to its duties and pleasures. The colonel was making money, and he could not leave his speculations long enough to attend the meetings of his post. As the years went by he at times wore the button of the order, and was known on one or two occasions to attend a reunion. During his term of office he could never find an evening to visit the post, and he was of no more use to the Grand Army than a wooden legged soldier to a regiment of light infantry. Now that he has found the need of another six years in the senate the colonel changes his mind. He suddenly discovers that he has important business in Sandusky, and of course he could not think of being in town without making a speech to the veterans there assembled. They didn't cheer themselves hoarse when his name was announced, nor did they throw their hats high in the air when he apologized for not being diligent in the performance of his duty. They simply let him talk, and by their silence rebuked him for coming among them. Later in the day some one of the colonel's few friends nominated him for delegate to the national encampment, and then the boys broke out. They protested with cries of dissent, and when a loyal member of the Grand Army shouted the nomination of Hon. J. B. Foraker, the big audience room rang with cheers. Again and again did those old fellows shout for the man who said the rebel flags were trophies of war and should not be returned to the men who fought against Old Glory. It was a stirring scene, and the colonel realizing that he could not wind the old soldiers of Ohio around his finger, walked sadly away. The Grand Army does not enter politics, but it is composed of men who know their friends and never forget them. Colonel Brice has never done anything to warrant honor from the hands of the Grand Army. They know him for what he was, but not for what he is.

ADMISSION TO GROVE,

A MONSTER FACTORY.

Government Cigarette Works, Seville, Employ 2,000 Women and Girls.

One of the sights of Seville which no tourist misses is the cigarette factory, in which the government employs nearly 2,000 women and girls. The showing about of visitors is accordingly looked upon as a regular source of income by the porter and matrons. After getting permission to enter you are placed in charge of a matron, who shows you through her own department and then passes you on to another, and so on, until your stock of pesetas and half pesetas, put aside for fees, is exhausted.

These matrons accompany the visitors, not in order to prevent the girls from flirting with them—nothing could do that—but to see that no tobacco, pictures or cigarettes may disappear. Before entering each room a bell is rung to warn the girls, who are in great disarray on account of the sun, to put on their wrappers, and as the door opens scold round arms and pretty shoulders are seen disappearing, while several hundred pairs of coal black eyes are fastened on you.

The passages are lined with cradles, and the young girl mothers to whom they belong implore you with eyes and hands for a penny for the Murillos of the future lying in them. These girls are more frank than subtle in their flirtations. There is not one in the crowd who will not be immediately conscious of a man's gaze fixed on her, nor will she be the first to turn her eyes away. Some will wink and even throw a kiss from a distant corner at the rich Ingleses—all foreigners are supposed to be wealthy Englishmen.

They are a merry lot on the whole, these poor girls, the quickest of whom make only 2 shillings a day, for which they have to toil 10 to 12 hours. They are allowed to smoke if they wish, and they make use of this privilege. They are remarkably deft at rolling the cigarettes, but not all seem eager to make as many as possible, for some are idling and others are asleep, but no one cares, as each one is paid according to the number she twists up, aided only by a piece of specially made cartridge paper and a small tin affair on her little finger.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

ENGLISH TRAMPS AND THEIR BABIES.

On arriving at York we went on once to Wargate, the kiphouse district, and picked out the filthiest one we could find. The inmates were principally in pairs. Each moocher had his July (wife), and each little kid had his little Moll (sister). These children are the very offspring of the road, and they remind me very much of monkeys. Yet one has to feel sorry for them, since they did not ask for life and yet are compelled to see its meanest and dirtiest side. Their mothers love them, when they are not drunk, and when they are their fathers have to play mothers, if they are not drunk themselves. Never in my life have I seen a more serious comic situation than in that York kiphouse, where two tramps were rocking their babies to sleep. Moochers—bohemians of the bohemians—fondling their babies! I should far sooner have looked for a New York hobo in a clergyman's robes. But tramping with children and babies is a sad in English vagabondage.—Josiah Flynt in June Century.

ALASKA'S BIG BEARS.

GOOD FISHERMEN, ROADMAKERS AND FIERCE FIGHTERS.

What Hunters Who Have Met the Grizzly Have to Say of His Alaska Cousin—They Do Not Fear Man and Will Fight While Mortally Wounded.

A traveler who recently returned from Alaska says: "The Alaskan brown bear is a huge, shaggy animal, varying in length from 6 to 12 feet and weighing from 800 to 1,500 pounds. I found him to be an expert fisher, and during the salmon season he frequents all the rivers emptying into the Bering sea and the north Pacific and their tributaries as far as the fish go. After the salmon run is over the animal retreats into the recesses of the hills, where berries and small game are plentiful. Among other things he does besides fishing and occasionally chewing up hunter, he is a great roadmaker for this part of Alaska. Not only are the banks of the streams trodden into good trails by these huge lumbering beasts, but the swampy plains are crossed in every direction by paths leading to the hills. The traveler will do well to follow them in journeying across the country, as they invariably lead to the best feeding places along the stream and form the best routes to the hills."

A hunter who has spent some time here recently chasing brown bears writes several of his experiences to the Seattle Telegraph.

"My first encounter," he says, "with one of these brown bears was a startling experience for me, and I have always thought equally so for the bear. We had been working up against a strong current of the Kooowak river all day, and toward nightfall pitched our tent at the base of a high bluff forming the right bank of the stream. While supper was being prepared I climbed the bluff to take a look at the country and was walking along with my gun carelessly held in my left hand. The top of the bluff was densely covered almost to the edge with spruce and alders, and the undergrowth was so thick that it was impossible to see more than a few feet through it. Ahead of me a cluster of rocks offered a temporary place to sit down and enjoy the view, and I made for it. Just as I reached the nearest rock a tremendous shaggy animal arose apparently from under my feet, and I immediately recognized in him the brown bear of whose fierceness the natives had been telling me for weeks. My first instinct was to shoot, and I probably would have done so had my gun been in my right hand, but the first motion I made the bear reared on his haunches and was so formidable looking that I concluded to wait and see what he intended doing. After a moment's hesitation, during which he turned his head from side to side and licked his chops in a most suggestive fashion, he dropped on all fours, and with wonderful quickness turned and sprang out of sight in the dense undergrowth. When I returned to camp and related my experience, Tah-tah-rok, my native guide, assured me that the bear must recently have concluded a heavy meal, or otherwise he would have attacked me."

"Some officers from some of the vessels of the Bering sea fleet went ashore at Herendeen bay during the summer of 1881 on a deer hunt, and one of the party saw a bear about 100 yards distant eating berries. Without thought of the consequences, he raised his gun and fired at the animal.

"The shot went wide of the mark, but at the report of the gun the bear started for the hunter on a dead run. His charge was met with a shower of bullets from the officer's repeater; but, although badly wounded, the infuriated animal did not hesitate an instant and rushed straight at his enemy. When within about 10 feet of the hunter, the bear rose on his haunches and prepared to close. Blood was pouring in streams down his body. One bullet had shattered his upper jaw, but he was so full of fight that the final outcome of the struggle would have been extremely doubtful had not another of the party arrived and ended the fight by shooting the brute through the brain. An examination of the bear's body showed that he had been struck six times. Three of the shots were in parts of the body ordinarily considered vital and would doubtless have caused death, but the vitality of these animals is almost incredible. Instances are cited of their running over 100 yards after being shot through the heart."

"Last summer, while I was at Sand Point, two hunters came in, after an absence of over a month in the vicinity of Portage bay, and reported having killed 33 bears. One day they killed seven. In order to show that they were not spinning hunters' yarns they brought the skins with them and sold them at a trading post at Sand Point. During the summer of 1881 two prospectors were looking for coal lands near Port Moller, and about a mile from the shore they came upon an immense brown bear engaged in catching salmon in a small stream. One of the prospectors immediately opened fire, and evidently wounded the brute badly, but he got out of sight in the thick brush. Being anxious to secure the skin the two men started to follow the wounded animal. They had not gone a dozen steps before the enraged and wounded brute turned on them, and before either one could fire a shot he seized one man by the leg and bit it nearly off, and then sprang upon his companion and knocked him senseless with the blow of his terrible paw. Having, as he thought, finished his enemies, the bear quietly ambled off, and was subsequently found dead a few hundred yards from the scene of battle."

STOP THE TREMOLO.

A Nuisance In Music Which Destroys Good Singing.

Can any one explain to me the secret of the popularity of the detestable mode of singing which is now practiced so extensively in our city? I need scarcely add that I refer to what is commonly called the tremolo. It came into fashion about 40 years ago and is not time that that fashion should die a natural death? Mme. La Grange was the first who introduced it here. She was much heralded, and therefore was believed to be a fine singer—to the extent that she drew fair audiences for a short time. But people soon wearied of her peculiar style and ceased going to hear her. She was passive when she came to this country, and it was said that it was to cover a broken down voice that she had recourse to the now hackneyed vibrato. However, many deluded singers, considering that her style must be one of the good things which come to us from Europe, strove, but too successfully, to imitate it.

When I was studying vocal music, great care was taken to impress upon my mind the extreme importance and beauty of a firm, pure and steady tone, with its gradual crescendo and diminuendo. Ah, with what infinite pains I tried to produce my notes without a shadow of wavering or change of quality! And now to think that the beautiful sostenuto is considered of but small account by so many people who, I maintain, ought to know better! I have seen a roomful of people moved to tears by a pathetic song rendered by a well sustained voice, and with distinct enunciation of the words. Yet who would ever dream of weeping over the most touching ballad in the world when sung in the miserable, shaky style now in vogue, which leaves the listener in doubt as to whether he is hearing sung C sharp or D, F sharp or G?

Among the best of vocalists belonging to our city and its vicinity this tremolo is often adopted. For some reason sopranos and baritones use it most frequently, and I may add ad nauseam. It is more than disagreeable on the stage and in the parlor. It is beyond endurance when it obtrudes itself in the church service. No place or occasion is safe from its impudent intrusion. I have heard a soprano of good standing profane the lofty strains of "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" by her tremulous rendering, obnoxious as it was inappropriate.—Cor. New York Tribune.

The Powder Making Family.

A strange heritage was that bequeathed to his children by Eleuthere Irénée Du Pont de Nemours, when, driven from France by the revolution, he came to the faraway state of Delaware, and with skill in chemistry, acquired under the great Lavoisier, set to work in 1802 making gunpowder for America and the civilized world, if a world can be called civilized that uses so much of it. Vast wealth he prepared for his descendants, the family fortunes today uniting into nearly $100,000,000. But along with the riches he left a dread responsibility that presses down relentlessly upon every son and grandson. "Thou shalt not rest; thou shalt not fear," is written on the brow of every Du Pont child, and read in the life of every Du Pont man. If ever a family was brave, it is the Du Ponds; if ever a family had need of bravery, it is they.

The Du Ponds monopolize the gunpowder business of America, controlling 28 of the 32 mills in this country. They do this by confiding to no one, not even to the archives of the patent office, their secret methods of composition, their specially devised machinery, and all the lore of gunpowder making that has come to them through generations. This inherited knowledge is the family treasure, and to guard it inviolate the Du Ponds must be their own mechanics, chemists, superintendents and engineers, must spend hours every day in the mills, must live with the menace of sudden and frightful death always about them.—McClure's Magazine.

Chinese Cooking.

This knowledge of what we are pleased to call artificial digestion runs largely through all Chinese cooking. Whenever meats, especially the heavy and indigestible class, are to be employed as food, the cook increases their assimilative character by the use of peptoniferous tripe and vinegar. I have often out of curiosity examined the numerous made dishes of the Mongolian cuisine with a view to ascertaining their constitution. Whether it was soups or stews, ragouts or fricassées, pot roasts or boiled, I have found tripe finely shredded or thinly sliced in three dishes out of every five. The ratio was largest in households of wealth, where well paid cooks were the rule, and smallest in those where the conditions were otherwise. As they did not hesitate an instant and rushed straight at his enemy. When within about 10 feet of the hunter, the bear rose on his haunches and prepared to close. Blood was pouring in streams down his body. One bullet had shattered his upper jaw, but he was so full of fight that the final outcome of the struggle would have been extremely doubtful had not another of the party arrived and ended the fight by shooting the brute through the brain. An examination of the bear's body showed that he had been struck six times. Three of the shots were in parts of the body ordinarily considered vital and would doubtless have caused death, but the vitality of these animals is almost incredible. Instances are cited of their running over 100 yards after being shot through the heart.

LOCAL BREVIETIES.

Miss Annie Corns, of West End, is very ill with tonsillitis.

A runaway horse caused a stir of dust on the Smith's Ferry road last night.

J. T. Herbert fell from his wheel last night, and now carries his arm in a bandage.

Reverend Taggart last evening married H. Specht and Miss Lilian E. Everstein at the parsonage on East Market street.

Ed McClure, of the clerical force at the postoffice, is confined to his home on Sixth street by sealing on his left arm. The other clerks are dividing his work.

Business men who are hoping for good trade among the farmers will be glad to hear that wheat promises a better crop than it did last week, and conditions are much improved.

It is quietly whispered around that the wife of a local newspaper man has wearied of married life, and gone to the home of her parents, in a town not a thousand miles from Liverpool.

The Sunday school of the First Methodist Episcopal church have set next Wednesday as the time for holding the annual picnic, and Rock Spring as the place. The Girl's band will be in attendance.

Some arrangements should be made to remove the unsightly derrick and engine from the Diamond. The work is done, they are no longer of any service there, and the owners should be asked to push them along.

The merchant tailors have not yet decided on an hour for early closing, and will likely do nothing until after the Glorious. One of the most prominent among them told a reporter that he was in favor of closing at 6 o'clock.

Professor Gottschall and Doctor Jackman left to-day for a long bicycle trip through the surrounding counties. They expect to visit Salineville, Harlan, Sevierville, Carrollton and other places, and anticipate a good time.

The roads are dusty, but otherwise in good condition for riding, and men go out from the city every day.

Word from Steubenville says there was no meeting of grocers in that place yesterday for the purpose of making a test case in the prosecutions for selling oleomargarine. It was reported that merchants from this place and half a dozen others were to be there, but the plan miscarried, and only Empire and Toronto were there to take up the cause.

A quiet little game of poker was rudely interrupted in the West End last night. There were six parties in the game, and two are said to have captured all the money, when one of the losing crowd swore he had been cheated. The others took up the cry, and to save themselves the publicity occasioned by arrest the winners gave out what they had.

The informant of the News Review was slightly in error yesterday when he stated that Reverend Taggart and Undertaker McQuilken had gone to Summitville to take charge of a funeral. Reverend Taggart went to installation services at Lebanon church, while Undertaker McQuilken was called to the bedside of a relative in Summitville, who is very low.

Complaint has been made to the police of a drunken gang who occupy the railroad between the flint mill and the glass works every night. Usually the crowd is full enough to be harmless except to heap insult upon the heads of decent people who chance to pass that way. If the practice is not discontinued there will be a party of guests at city hall some evening, for the police are strongly opposed to such gatherings.

The Sons of Veterans enjoyed themselves at a stag banquet in their hall last evening, a large number of members being present. The program was made up of several happy speeches, and the laugh and joke went round the festive board until a late hour. The membership of the camp has been sensibly increased within the past year, and the leaders of the society are straining every nerve to make it one of the best in the state.

When a well known potter, in whose head silver is beginning to appear, was walking in the Diamond yesterday a little girl took his hand and insisted on him following her. Surprised at the action, because he had never seen the child before, he walked with her for half a block, when she led him into a candy store, and pointed to some sweets. Realizing that he was expected to buy, he produced the price, and the little one walked away happy.

River men are longing for a rise in the river, and are growing from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati because it does not come. For two months there has not been enough water to float coal from Pittsburgh, and the harbor is full. It costs the operators $2,000 a day to keep the coal in barges, but they have given up all hopes of a June rise. The ground is too dry to do anything but swallow up the rain, and it would take several inches in the mountains to make any showing in the big river.

LOST HIS ARM.

Dr. George H. Smith Suffered an Amputation Yesterday.

Doctor George H. Smith, one of the best known residents of this place, suffered an amputation in Pittsburgh yesterday which deprives him of an arm. Two years ago he scratched his hand, and blood poisoning resulted. For weeks the danger was guarded, and every effort known to medical science was made to overcome the awful disease. At length the doctor found that his only safety was the hospital, and he entered the Homeopathic in Pittsburgh. There the physicians did all in their power, but it was decided yesterday to amputate the arm, and the doctor is a little better to-day in consequence. His practice has been in charge of Doctor Sloan, of East Liverpool, who will remain here until Doctor Smith is able to return.

TAKEN TO HOSPITALS.

Wellsville People Who Are Very Ill.

S. P. Berry, a well known resident of the West End, was taken to a Cleveland hospital yesterday, where he will undergo an operation. Doctor Holland accompanied him.

Another operation was performed on Jack Everson at Pittsburgh yesterday. The physicians found it necessary to lance his back, and in spite of his weakened condition he stood the test admirably. The doctors are making an heroic fight for his life.

Miss Edith Todd, who has been in a Cleveland hospital for some time, was subjected to a delicate operation yesterday, and it is believed, because of the success attending the effort, that she will be able to return home much improved in health.

LOST MONEY.

The Sons of Veterans Made Nothing From the Play.

The many friends of the Sons of Veterans will hear with regret that they made no money from the presentation of "Charleston" last week, but on the other hand their treasury was deprived of $30 to make both ends meet. In order to fill the hole they expect to reproduce the play in November, adding to it features that will draw good crowds, and advertise it extensively.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hamilton are visiting friends in Millport today.

Miss Payne Hunter, who has been attending school in Steubenville, has returned home. Miss Hunter will leave in a few weeks for Cleveland, where she will spend the summer.

Doctor Parker went to Cleveland to-day on business.

Mrs. Davis, who has been the guest of Mrs. Parke, of Main street, returned to her home in Cleveland today.

Milton Mann left for New York today, where he will accept a position in a wholesale jewelry store.

ATTENDING A WEDDING.

The following persons are in Minerva today attending the Appel-Yost nuptials, which take place at 8 o'clock this evening: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Riggs, W. H. Schriven and wife, Misses Sue Slacker, Amy Mannist, Mame Jones, Erla Duffy, Mr. Neff and David Silver, who will act as best man. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. P. H. Jones, of this city, and the happy young people will go to housekeeping on Front street here.

PICNIC ACCIDENTS.

Clark Montgomery was so unfortunate as to get three of his fingers badly lacerated on the barb wire fence at Rock Spring yesterday.

Peter Cooper, one of the boys with the party, decided to take a bath in the river shortly before the boat left and was unable to get dressed in time, and missed the boat.

THE MAYOR'S GUESTS.

The city jail contains seven prisoners. Five are train bummers, the colored man, Fisher, and the man who jumped his board bill. It is probable that the train jumpers will be put to work on the streets, but the colored man is too tired to work and would rather stay in jail. Lyman has not yet been sentenced.

FINED THE BARTENDER.

J. H. Fatley, the bartender, who was to have his trial for selling liquor to minors, decided to change his plea to guilty and the mayor gave him a fine amounting in all to about $18.

THE WIRE WAS DOWN.

The trolley wire was down last night between Ninth and Eleventh streets, and passengers were transferred. It often falls on this stretch.

ON THURSDAY EVENING.

The social to be given at the home of J. R. Warner, Alum Cliff place near Park, will be on Thursday evening instead of Saturday as erroneously stated. A large crowd is expected to attend from this city.

CHEAP FIREWORKS.

They Are Useless When People Have No Money to Buy.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW—I have recently learned that fireworks are cheaper than dirt this year because Bill Wilson's bill cut down the duty. We ought to be glad for that; doubtless we should be if it did us any good, but it don't. Even now with all their low tariff and bluster we can't have as many fireworks as when the duty was high and the American factories made the powder we burned. The bill that cut the price of fireworks cut our wages as well, and took away our employment. They offer us cheap fireworks and want us to celebrate the glorious Fourth when they know we are only working a few days a week, and have no money. We used to have bread, but the Democrats took it from us and gave us fireworks. Ye gods, what a line of policy for a civilized nation.

A POTTER OUT OF WORK.

A Great Institution.

Trainer William Bridge and his canine aggregation, Joe, Clint and Rev, attracted much attention and comment yesterday as they passed along the streets. The dogs running away when told to come nearer is, of course, one of the tricks they have been taught by their efficient master, so the suspicion that they are not properly trained does Mr. Bridge an injustice. For the nominal sum of $32.19 per month, Mr. Bridge will guarantee to teach a dog any trick it already knows or positively refund the money. Satisfaction guaranteed those who are not particular whether or not they ever see their dog again.

LISBON WANTS IT TOO.

That an electric line from Liverpool to Salem via Lisbon would prove a paying investment, is beyond question. There is probably no better opening for such a line in the state. It seems that capital has at last discovered this, and has commenced active operations for the construction of a line. Every encouragement should be given them, and our citizens should now bend all their energies toward that one object. With Lisbon connected by rail with East Liverpool and Salem, her advancement to a city is sure, and her future secure.—Lisbon Journal.

MANY WILL BE THERE.

Enthusiastic workers in the United Presbyterian church, of Pittsburgh, are talking of a great picnic, the project to hold some time in August. The gathering will be at Allequippa, and people from the three states will enjoy the day.

A boat excursion will be arranged for the people of Wellsville and this place, and the others will be gathered in on trains. Rev. J. C. Heilstler, of Buna Vista, Pa., is at the head of the committee of arrangements.
